Everything Ready for Picnic Next Saturday

Day and Picnic celebration that is to be held in Grayling Saturday next, and if the weather man is good that day it is going to be one of the biggest events Grayling ever conducted.

The auto parade at 9:00 a.m. promises to be a hum-dinger. Everyone owning a gent perceived to get for coffee.

And our Go/ernor and Congressman are expected to be present and talk. Of course we want to hear them. Then there comes the sports and ball game. There will be a plenty to keep everyone occupied until they wish to long.

Then there is that trip to see the Reindeer. Don't miss that either. At noon it is expected that every family that can possibly get there will be at Connine's grove with their picnic dinner. The committee has been doing a lot of work and have the place spic and span and everything convenient for a real picnic. Everyone be there and enjoy mingling with yourneighbors. A special invitation is extended to those living out of the city. All will be welcome. Hot coffee, cream and sugar furnished free; so bring your cups and pail or pitcher for coffee.

Lt. Claude L. Allen and forty enlisted men of the 107th Ordnance Company of the 32nd Division which is located at Pontiac, Mich., were the first troops to arrive in Grayling for the National Guard. Their main work this week will be in the preparation of the rifler range for the camp. The Grayling Range at present is the largest in the State. Practically all of the equipment on the range is new or has just been overhauled. The target frames were all repainted recently, ander contract by Harley Diltz. The least troops to arrive will consist mainly of the advance details for the limediate preparation of the various parts of the camp site.

The Quarternwaster Department has instruceived a fine new Q. M. C. truck from the Government. It has pneumatic tires which are so large that they tax the capacity of the cal air stations.*

For a Better Town.

Conducted by Grayling

At the last meeting of our business men we had a better attendance. We find a good many of our business men are interested in the welfare of our town. Still we have quite a number who have not yet cared to attend the meetings. It seems that no amount of coaxing will bring them out. Please note the names of those who have been present at our various meetings and cull out those of our business men whose names have never yet appeared in these columns. Are incomported to tizens? Do they men't your support? We are carrying some dead heads along merely because they are here. They will have to wake up or we are going to pus, them off. Those present at the meeting July 31st are as follows:

The committee appointed for the purpose of securing a black-smith shop and feed barn together with other accommodations for our farmers are going to push it to a finish. They are to have plans drawn and figures compiled so that soon you can expect to see this proposition come to a satisfactory finish. All our merchants should be interested in this and help the committee in every way possible

The Industrial Committee has formed a line of action and they are going to produce results. They will be very glad to receive suggestions from any one and eac, and every individual should get busy and help boost. Don't expect the committee to do it all but come across and do your share.

The advertising committee are completing a set of signs to be placed on all roads leading to Grayling, also some large signs to be placed in conspicuous places in town. These signs will be lettered in a manner to advertise Grayling in the best possible manner. In this connection attention has been called to the fact that children and some grownups are getting a lot of pleasure out of destroying signs placed along the roads. This sort of destruction must cease NOW. Our officers and department of justice must do their si are in stopping this practice. Destruction of signs so placed is a violation of the law and is punishable by a heavy fine and jail sentence. We are going to prosecute any one caught destroying these signs and those whose pleasure is to shoot holes in sign boards and break them up with stones etc., better reform at once. If it continues we are sure to catch you sometime. Every member of the Board of Trade, Auto Club and Business men are going to make it a point to look out for these people.

The very bad condition of our trunk line road south of Grayling, has been called to my attention. It isn't a common occurrence to hear of people getting stark on this road at most any place. It is positively time that the County Road Commissioners got busy and gave the people some service.

MY JOB AS A BOOSTER FOR THE TOWN I LIVE IN.

MY JOB AS A BOOSTER FOR THE TOWN I LIVE IN.

If I don't boost my town and help contribute to its growth and welfare, I would call myself a failure, no matter how much money I make or how big a reputation I get. And so it should be with everyone in Grayling. We should not let our selfishness hold a ruling hand over us and live for self alone. There are big possibilities here for us all if we only make up our minds to get together and do them. There is real work to be done and everyone should help to do it. It cannot be accomplished by knocking nor by being a grasping individual, we must help each other and in so doing we are helping our town. Someone may have a good idea, another a good suggestion and combining we accomplish the big things and together we make our town grow.

The Grayling Roard of Trade is trying to accomplish that make

The Grayling Board of Trade is trying to accomplish that—make Grayling go ahead. The officers of the Board cannot do it alone without the assistance of every individual in the Community. Our business men are showing a better spirit and must necessarily be the leaders. They must eliminate their selfish ambition and grasping ways. Most of them have always worked in harmony with progressive ideas but others have not. These few continue with their selfish and grasping ways, creating discord. The business man who has not the interest of his town at heart should be forced by pressure from the general public to spruce up, and work for the betterment of his community, get the co-operation of his fellow business men and create that harmony which should exist. In Grayling there are men who seem to feel that they have nothing in common with others in the same line. Therefore we have a great deal of bad feeling. Merchants in the same line should have a uniform closing hour. There is no excuse for any one individual not observing the rule. If all observe the rule the thought of selfishness and grasping ways will change to co-operation and harmony.

It is up to every citizen in Grayling, man or woman to help and

It is up to every citizen in Grayling, man or woman to help and I appeal to you for your judgment in these matters. If you find a merchant who isn't willing to help in getting a co-operative spirit and be a willing booster, tell him plainly that you are going to give your patronage to the merchant that is a booster and trade with the boosters. We have merchants who are willing boosters and hard workers, who never hesitate to assist in doing something good for the community and others cling to a selfish spirit at all times. We should have no room for that class in town, they are a detriment, not only from a local standpoint but from an outside viewpoint as well. For that reason I ask every citizen to take part in this work of building up our town. It is necessary to clean up our town first, get our citizens set right and the rest will naturally follow. Every tax building up our town. It is necessary to clean up our town first, get our citizens set right and the rest will naturally follow. Every tax payer should be interested as it means dollars and cents to them in more ways then one. This applies to the big fellow as well as to the little fellow, and I repeat, if I don't boost my town and help contribute to its growth and welfare I would consider myself a failure, no matter how much money I make or how big a reputation I get. It is the duty of every citizen to do and feel the same way, and it will not be very long and the time not far off that Grayling will be growing. We have everything in our favor but it all lies with ourselves as to whether or not we are to be small folks in a small town or big folks in a big town. We can and we will get busy, let that be our slogan.

Both are strong teams Maniatee has a fine fielding team and the game no doubt would draw a large crowd of fans. It was rumored in Manistee that Grayling came over loaded up with outside players, but this was not true. The old regulars were lined up: Reynolds at second, Mines took his old station on first sack, W. Laurant played at short, Smith at third, Doroh left field, Morrow center field, Nelson right field; battery, Laurant and Johnson.

In the 8th inning the score stood at a tie fits 5 and in the 9th neither side scored so it called for an extra inning. In this frame, R. Isaurant struck out, w. Laurant singled, Johnson walked, advancing Laurant to second. Reynolds singled scoring Laurant and Johnson scored when Yunk threw bad to third to catch him off the sack. One thing can be said of Grayling they seem to have the faculty of bunching their hits and each one can be depended upon to do his best. Manistee

U. S. POWERLESS, SAYS PRESIDENT

HARDING TELLS GOVERNOR THAT GOVERNMENT CANNOT IN-TERFERE NOW.

MINERS REFUSE STATE'S PLEA President of Union Refuses to Co-

Lansing-A letter from President Harding declares in effect that the Federal Government is powerless to interfere with the hostile attitude of the national organization of the United Mine Workers toward independent local agreements: that at presen nothing can be done except to enable men, willing to work, to work in safe ty, and that the big issue in the coal strike dispute is national dictation "unhesitatingly assumed by the mine workers" which must be taken care

f by legislation.

The President's letter was in reply to a telegram sent by Gov. Greesbeck when he informed the President that he was asking John L. Lewis, president of the United Workers, to grant Michigan miners permission to enter agreements independently of their national affiliation and return to work.

The Governor answered the Presi dent's letter by writing that he could not concede that the Federal Govern ment has not the power "to protect our citizens from the embarrassing sit uation that faces us."

President T. Leo Jones, of the Mich igan mine workers, rtfused to co-oper Igan mine workers, refused to co-oper ate in the move suggested by the ference at Saginaw last week. The refusal was brought about partly by the miners' disgruntlement over alleged discrimination by Michigan con sumers in favor of Kentucky and Pennsylvania producers, Jones hinted. Besides refusing to order his men back to work under the arrangement suggested by the governor, Jones de clined to ask John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, for permission to accede to the governor's request.

"Governor Groesbeck is simply asking the Michigan miners to dig their own graves." he declared in a statement issued after the conference,

REGENERATIVE RECEIVING SET

A regenerative set is one in which the wisetess waves or oscillations entering from the aerial are regenerated and increased by means for this reason, as well as on account of others. it is far superior to any style of crystal set. Roughly, a vacuum bulb or tube detector is about thirty times as efficient as the best crystal detector and moreover, with such sets, one or more steps of amplification may be used, thus increasing sounds to almost any extent. One of the great advantages of regenerative sets is that they will permit of tuning out interferences and the better the set and the more efficient the various units, the clearer and better the results obtained. I have al-rendy described how to set up a small regenerative set under "colls," there are various other methods of arranging or assembling regenerative sets. One of the best is the set used with a vario-coupler and variometers which is illustrated in Fig. 55. By using two variometers and a vario-coupler as shown, great selectivity of the circuit is obtained and by hooking on ampli-flers and using a loud speaker phone, music, songs, speeches, etc., may be reproduced as loudly as a good pho The only objection to such a graph. set is that there are several adjust-ments to be made in tuning as there are the three knobs to look after. In making this set it is not advisable to attempt to make either the variocoupler or the variometers, for while these instruments look simple, special tools and long practice and skill are required to construct them properly. Also, when purchasing these, select those in which the coils are not varnished or shellacked as these coverings invariably decrease the efficiency of a coll. The other parts required, aside from ordinary insulated electric bell wire, binding posts and a panel or base, are the vacuum bulb or tube detector; the socket for the tube, a grid-leak and condenser (which you can readily make yourself if desired), the rheostat, a variable condenser of .0005 mfd.; the six volt storage battery; B-battery and a pair of 2000 ohm By studying the diagram, you will easily see how the set should be ar- much.

ranged and hooked up, but, if you de sire, the wires may be altered to run at other angles or directions, the main thing being to keep them as short and direct as possible and to avoid running them parallel or crossing them: The aerial A is led in and connected to the primary of the vario-coupler B, the other terminal of the vario-coupler being connected with the variablethe secondary coil of the vario-coup-ler E, one wire is led to the phone or receivers. F. a connection being made at G, with the storage battery H and the rheostat I. The other wire from E, is led to the grid-variometer J, thence to the grid-leak and condenser K, then to the vacuum-tube grid L. The plate-connection of the tube M. is wired to the plate-variometer N and from here the wire runs to the B battery O, the other terminal of which

The whole affair, when finally connected and mounted on a neat bakelite neat case with a hinged cover, in order to protect the instruments from dust and disturbance and yet allow inspection or adjustment. Of course the adjusting or tuning knobs and the outside connections for aerial, ground and batteries should be led through the case or box to binding posts on the exterior. If the whole set is arranged compactly and neatly and you make an attractive, well finished case, the set will be the equal in appearance, as well as in efficiency, of any ready-made set costing several times as

TRANSMISSION OR SENDING

I have glready described the differ- that are necessary in order to send ence between interrupted waves and continuous waves and how the human voice, or other sounds, if transmitted by the ordinary interrupted waves of wireless telegraph sender, would be roken up and unintelligible. I have also explained how continuous waves capable of carrying such sounds without breaking them up; but while sounds of voices, music, etc., cannot be properly transmitted over an inter-rupted wave yet code signals or alternate dots and dushes may be transmitted over continuous waves by means of instruments which break or interrupt such waves, so that a radio-phone may be used to send both telegraphic and telephonic messages and a adio telephone receiver will receive both.

tial part of the sending or transmission apparatus, known as the radiophone, is the device by which the cona device known as a vacuum-tube oscillator which is similar to an ordinary incandescent light with specially pre-pared filament and other devices. The lows: If a condenser and inductance coll are shunted across the current to such a light the current is lessened as the condenser is charged and the potential difference across the arc increased. This still further charges the condenser which discharges through the coil and again becomes charged the reverse direction, the whole operation being repeated over and over again with extreme rapidity-as many as one million discharges a second being usual. Diagrammatically this arrangement is shown in Fig. 56. in which A represents the aerial, B the ground, C the coll, D the telephone receiver, E the condenser, F the light, G the dynamo or other source of electricity. The vacuum-tube on the other hand, acts in a very different manner. When this is charged with electricity the filament discharges an immense number of electrons upon a plate with incalculable rapidity Fig. 57, and this, by means of various appliances, produces the oscillating currents of extremely high frequency, or continuous waves. Unlike the arc light, moreover, the vacuum tube is employed in receiving, the incoming waves varying the current through the filament and so altering the flow of electrons, thus transforming the vacuum-tube from an oscillator to a detector. that an oscillator, a condenser, a coll ordinance and an aerial and ground are all to a fine.

wireless telephone messages. In addition, there are numerous appliances for tuning or adjusting wave lengths, modulating, amplifying and other purposes and in a large station these are very complicated and powerful. For example, the Westinghouse station at Newark uses five 250 watt and three as modulators-and which work in conjunction with two fifty watt speech amplifiers. The current used in lighting is ten volt A. C. with five amperes of radiation. sending the sounds, microphones are used and to maintain an even cool temperature on the tubes a rotary fan is employed. In this station the coil or inductance is a flat or pancake helix wound with half-inch copper ribhon while a special motor generator furnishes a 2,000 voit current for the plate. The aerial is of the multipletuned type of six 150-foot wires at a height of 210 feet above the ground thuous waves are produced. The instrument which was first devised for this purpose was an ordinary are light, but this has now given place to above the roof and below the aerial. As a lead-in, a ten wire cage on hoops two inches in diameter is used. This, however, is one of the largest and most powerful stations in the world and complete, so large or so powerful is ever required. For ordinary purposes, a very small sending set is all that is necessary and even for the smallest a license is required, for while there is no objection to any one operating a receiving set and listening-in to any thing that is in the air, a multitude of signals and sounds being sent is a great nuisance and interferes with every legitimate sending station by terferences. In fact, the greatest trouble in receiving is interference and it is far more difficult to tune out the weak waves from nearby amateur sending instruments than to the desired signals from the large stations.

Also, it is far more difficult to construct and set up a transmitting set than a receiving set and hence I adalone, or else make no attempt to install or use a transmitting set until thoroughly familiar with the subject and no longer an amateur. But as no book on wireless telephony would be considered complete without a description and instructions as to rigging up sending sets, a few tions and figures are given.

True Detective Stories

CATT IS absolutely essential," said the secretary of treasury, glancing across his deak at the short, ruddy-complexioned, rather stout man who sat opposite him, "that the persons responsible for these lynchings at Versailles be arrested, tried and onvicted. I don't think it is overstating the matter to say that this case is more important than any counterfeiting plot or smuggling cheme which the department has ever worked on, for the governor of In-diana has applied to the federal government for troops to handle the unrising which threatens to sweep over that part of the country, and the entire state is taking sides in the mat

"Naturally we do not wish to send troops to Versatiles unless it is absolutely necessary. It would only lead to additional bloodshed and disorder. What we need is someone who has the nerve to go out there investigate the case from every pos-sible angle and make a report as to the persons responsible for the lynch-That's why I sent for you

The man on the other side of the desk smiled and tapped thoughtfully with the forefinger of a hand which indicated strength and determination

"Of course," continued the secretary, "I must warn you that the case is one that is apt to prove dangerous. More so, in fact, than anything you have ever attempted. Compared to it, the roundup of a gang of moonshiners is child's play—for here you will have to work entirely in the dark, one man against practically an entire state. A single slip would mean your death, and would force the government to take steps which might lead to protracted bloodshed."

"In which case," replied the other, "it would be well for me to get out The to Versailles as soon as I can. longer we walt the less chance there is of success. But, somehow, I've got a hunch that they won't."

It was two days later that the train which stopped at Versailles, Ind., halted just long enough to permit a single passenger to alight-a man who was short and rather plump and with a ruddy complexion, a man who registered at the local hotel as "James M. But Versailles, as Beck soon discovered, was a poor field for life insur ance at that time. There was only one topic of conversation in which the natives were interested; the lynching of the five prisoners who had been taken from jail and murdered by an inturiated mob. This, coupled with open threats of defiance against the governor's edict that the guilty men must be punished, kept the town in a continual state of simmering, seething unrest-punctuated by frequent statements that any state or government official who tried to find out the name of the men implicated in the lynching rould be shot on sight.

Beck, apparently, wasn't in the least interested in the local turmoli, He had been sent to Versailles to sell insurance, and he was determined to sell II, no matter how many people he had to interview. The fact that he was a stranger led, of course, to immediate suspicion of his motives, and some two weeks passed before he was able to allay this.

About the end of the third week matters were brought to a head by of a wire which Beck sent to New York, a dispatch which was in code and which caused the operator to spread the report that the "life insurance agent" was a detective in disguise. Getting wind of this and realizing that he must take some ica) step to offset suspicion. Beck approached the man who appeared to be the leader of the trouble-faction. The agent explained to him that he was getting tired of the quarters at the hotel, and wondered If it would be possible to secure lodgings in private house where he would be a little more comfortable

"Certainly," said the native. reckon we can put you up all right." And he smiled at the thought of this man whom he suspected placing himself entirely in his power. That, however, was precisely what Beck wished, and it only took a couple of days of clever acting to convince the local leader that he was only what he appeared to be—a slow, plodding and conscientious insurance agent. It was in the house of the most dangerous citizen of Versailles, under the very eyes of his associates, that the stran or secured the information he scanted and put it together, piece by piece, until he had the entire story.

It was precisely a month to the day after the conversation in the office of the secretary of the treasury, when that official received a wire from Chicago stating that "all facts about Ver-sallies lynching now in hand. Com-plete list of men implicated follows by mail."

The name signed to the wire was "William J. Burns, chief of the United States secret service."

CANDIDATE FOR SHERIFF, ON REPUBLICAN TICKET.

I Sincerely Solicit Your Support

I have had a years experience as sheriff of Crawford County.
During my first campaign I promised you that I would do my work to the best of my ability; also that I would work all prisoners left in my charge, whenever possible so that they would not sit in the county jail and eat at your expense without paying the penalty to your satisfaction. Prisoners were worked on the streets

J. Bobenmoyer.

For Sheriff of Crawford County.

I do hereby announce to at I am a candidate for nomination on the Republican ticket for sheriff of Crawford Co. I have lived in Grayling nine years and two years in Maple Forest on the Ben Sherman farm and if nominated and elected, I will do the duty of a sheriff.

The annual meeting of the Crawford county Sportsmans association for the election of a board of directors and officers and all other business that may be properly brot before the meeting will be held at the Board of Trade rooms next Monday night, August 7, at 8:00 p. m.

All members are requested to be present. And also this will be a good time for prospective members to join the association. It is a worthy organization and anyone interested in fishing and wild game should become a member, even tho they seldom go fishing or hunting.

CAUSE OF APPENDICITIS.

When the bowels are constipated, the lower bowels or large intestines become packed with refuse matter, that is made up largely of germs. These germs enter the vermiform appendix and set up inflammation, which is commonly known as appendicitis. Take Chamberlain's Tablets when needed and keep your bowels regular and you have little to fear from appendicitis.

WINGARD-CHENEY.

A pretty wedding ceremony took place Monday evening, July 31st, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cheney of Lansing, when their daughter Miss Lucille Phyllis became the bride of Mr. William A. Wingard, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Wingard, of this city. The ring service was used, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Allen of the First Presbyterian church of Lansing. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Valva Cheney and Mr. Gilbert Jackson officiated as best man. At the ceremony the ring was carried in a rosebud by the small sister of the bride, little Eugena Cheney. The whole bridal party were gowned in white.

The morning following the wedding the newlyweds arrived in Grayling to spend their honeymoon visiting the groom's parents, expecting to leave for Detroit next Sunday where Mr. Wingard holds a position in the Clark Hardware store, after Sept. 1 to be at home on 259 Elmhurst avenue. time.

CHAPTER XVII

Mr. Spearman Goes North.

The message, in blurred lettering and upon the flimsy tissue paper of a carwet, Sherrill and Spearman and had called Constance Sherrill and her mother downtown where further information could be more quickly obtained-was handed to Constance by a cierk as soon as she entered her father's office. She reread it; it already had been repeated to her over the tele-

"4:05 a. m. Frankfort Wireless station has received following message from Number 25: 'We have Benjamin Corvet, of Chicago, aboard.'"

"You've received nothing later than this?" she asked, "Nothing regarding Mr. Corvet, Miss Sherrill," the clerk replied, "The crew?"

"Yes; we have just got the names of the crew." He took another copied til the girl had gone out; even then sheet from among the pages and handhe stood folding and unfolding it, and ed it to her, and she looked swiftly down the list of names until she found that of Alan Conrad. Her eyes filled, blinding her, as she put the paper down, and began to take off her things. She had been clinging determinedly in her thought to the belief that Alan might not have been aboard the ferry. Alan's message, which had sent her father north to meet the ship, had implied plainly that some one whom Alan believed might be Uncle Benny was on Number 25: she had been fighting, these last hours, against conviction that therefore Alan must be on the ferry,

She stood by the desk, as the clerk went out, looking through the papers which he had left with her. What she was reading was the carbon of the report prepared that morning and sent, at his rooms, to Henry, who was not

The last message read: "6:40, Pe toskey is calling Manitowoc, 'Signals from Number 25, after becoming indistinct, failed entirely about 5:45, probably by failure of ship's power to supply current. Constance had not realized, until the reports of the wireless messages told werk. her that he was gone, what compan-tonship with Alan had come to mean She had accepted it as always to be existent, somehow—a com-panionship which might be interrupted often but always to be formed again, It amazed her to find how firm a place he had found in her world of those. close to her with whom she must always be intimately concerned.

The telephone switchboard beside

Constance suddenly buzzed, and the operator, plugging in a connection, said: "Yes, sir; at once," and through and she heard it in his tones and saw the partitions of the private office on the other side, a man's heavy tones came to Constance. That was Henry's office, and in timbre, the voice was his, but it was so strange in other characteristics of expression that she waited an instant before saying to the clerk,
"Mr. Spearman has come in?"

The clerk hesitated, but the con-nuance of the tone from the other side of the partition made reply superfluous. "Yes, Miss Sherrill."

Constance went to Henry's door and move to open the door; so, after waiting a moment, she turned the knob and went in.

Henry was seated at his desk, facing her, his big hands before him; or them held the telephone receiver. He lifted it slowly and put it upon the hook beside the transmitter as he watched her with steady, silent, aggressive scrutiny. He did not rise only after a moment he recollected that he had not done so and came to his feet. "Good morning, Connie," he said,

"Come in. What's the news?" The impulse which had brought her into his office went from her. She had not seen nor heard from Henry directly since before Alan's telegram had come late yesterday afternoon; she had heard from her father only that he had informed Henry; that was all,

"I've no news, Henry," she said.
"Have you?" She closed the door behind her, moving closer to him.

"How did you happen to be here, Connie?" he asked.

She made no reply but gazed at him, studying him. The agitation which he was trying to conceal was not entirely consequent to her coming in upon him; It had been ruling him before. It had his words which she had overheard, was congratulating himself; it had That was no capricious outburst of been fear that he was feeling beforesomething which had seized and held that those on the ferry had been saved, him in suspense, in dread-in dread; there was no other way to define her impression to herself. When she had opened the door and come in, he had looked up in dread, as though preparing himself for whatever she might them in alone, he approached her with the larger office, he stopped, and she arms offered. She stepped back, in-stinctively avoiding his embrace; and he stopped at once, but he had come

Henry straightened, itstened; as the voice stopped, his great, finely-shaped head sank between his shoulders; he fumbled in his pocket bon copy—that message which had as he lighted it, without word of ex-brought tension to the offices of Corcuse to her. A strange feeling came to her that he felt what he dreaded approaching and was no longer conscious forgetting everything else; but he took the paper as though he did not know she was there. He merely held it un his eyes did not drop to the sheet,

The girl had said nothing at all but, having seen her, Constance was athrill; the girl had not been a bearer of bad news, that was sure; she brought some sort of good news! Constance, certain of it, moved nearer to Henry to read what he held. He looked lown and read.

"What is it, Henry?"
His muscular reaction, as he read had drawn the sheet away from her; ne recovered himself almost instantly and gave the paper to her.

"8:35 a. m., Manitowoc, Wis.," she ead. "The schooner Anna S. Solwerk has been sighted making for this port She is not close enough for communi cation, but two lifeboats, additional her own, can be plainly made out. It is believed that she must have picked no wireless, so is unable to report Tugs are going to her."
"Two lifeboats!" Constance cried

That could mean that they all are saved or nearly all; doesn't it, Hen ry; doesn't it?"

He had read some other significance in it, she thought, or, from his greater understanding of conditions in the storm, he had been able to hold no hope from what had been reported That was the only way she could explain to herself as he replied to her that the word meant to him that men were saved and that therefore it was dismaying to him, could not come to her at once. When it came now, it went over her first only in the flash of incredulous question.

The telephone buzzer under his desk sounded; she drew close as he took up his receiver.

"Manitowor?" he said, "I want to know what you've heard from the Solwerk. . . You hear me? . . . The men the Solwerk picked up. You have the names yet?"

"The Benton?"

"Oh, I understand! All from the Benton. I see! . . . No; never mind their names. How about Number 25? Nothing more heard from them?"

Constance had caught his shoulder while he was speaking and now clung it in his eyes. "The steamer Number 25 rammed proved to have been the Benton," he told her, "The men are all from her, boats, and the Solwerk picked them up before the ferry found her."

He was not asking her to congratu

Horror and amazement flowed in un on her with her realization of this in the man she had promised to marry. For an instant she stared at him, all her body tense; then, as she turned and went out he followed her, calling name. But if the Drum was beating, she was glad it was beating short. It was serving, at least, to keep the lake men more alert.

A little later, as Constance stood at the window, gazing out at the snow upon the lake, she drew back suddenly out of sight from the street, as she saw Henry's roadster appear out of the storm and stop before the house. She waited in the room where she was. The strain he was under had not lessened, she could see; or rather, if she could trust her feeling at sight and at the same time his power to esist it had been lessening too. "I thought you'd want to know, Con-

Alan had described the man to her; that description had not had meaning for her before; but now remembering that description she could think of Henry as the only one who could have been in that house Henry had fought with Alan there! Was that her father-and she-must give her husband when they learned the revelation which Alan or Uncle Benny might bring?

At Petoskey she went from the train directly to the telegraph office. If Henry was in Petoskey, they would know at that office where he could be Henry found: he would be keeping in touch with them.

Mr. Spearman, the operator said, had been at the office early in the day there had been no message for him he had left instructions that any which came were to be forwarded to him through the men who, under his "We are to communicate with him direction, were patrolling the shore for twenty miles north of Little Traverse, watching for boats.

She had not peta abie before this to form any defi nite idea of how Henry could threat en Alan and Uncle Benny; she had imagined only vague interference and obstruction of the search for them: she had not foreseen that he could so readily assume charge of the search and direct, or misdirect, it.

At the Point she discharged the sledge and went on foot to the house of the caretaker who had charge of the Sherrill cottage during the winter. Getting the keys from him, she let herself into the house. Going to he room, she unpacked a heavy sweater and woolen cap and short fur coatwinter things which were left against use when they opened the house sometimes out of season—and put them on. Omaha was a distributing point for the United States graves registration service. After the federal agency began to return hodies from overseas thousands of caskets passed Omaha. Mr. Buck suggested to the Omaha American Legion that a gold star be placed on each soldier's casket. The Legion immediately accepted the idea and through the Legion's organi zation, the custom of placing the star on all soldiers' caskets in all parts of the United States was adopted.

Every contingent of soldier dead arriving at Omaha was met at the railway station by a delegation from the American Legion. Mr. Buck always accompanied the Legionnaires and su-pervised the placing of the stars on the caskets. The medal was presented ation of his work.

London Papers.

How many morning dailies are now published in London? Most people, journalists included, would answer offhand that there are not more than a dozen. Actually the addition of the Westminster Gazette to the list brings the total number up to 30. London's morning publications are considerably in excess of the evening issues, whose number is 12. A few of the constituents of the latter list are also not to be found in the ordinary book

The best record established to date was on July 12, , when they succeeded in making 40 miles in

When Baby Complains.

THERE ARE MANY WAYS a baby has of expressing any pain or irregularity or digression from its normal condition of health and happiness. A short sharp cry, a prolonged irritated cry. Restlessness, a constant turning of the head or of the whole body, fretful. In these and other ways a baby tells you there is something wrong. Most mothers know that a disordered stomach, or bowels that do not act naturally are the cause of most of baby's sufferings. A call for the doctor is the first thought, but in the event of any delay there should be ready at hand a safe remedy such as Fletcher's Castoria.

Castoria has been used for baby's ailments for over 30 years and has merited the good will of the family physician in a measure not equaled by any other baby's medicine because of its harmlessness and the good results achieved.

And remember this: Castoria is essentially a baby's remedy and not a cureall for every member of the family. What might help you is too often dangerous when given to a babe.

Children Cry For

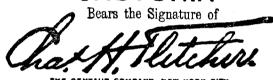

Let's Think It Over.

There is such a thing as saying too much on any subject, and the "grand-stand" talker sooner or later becomes a bore. The truth is always welcomed, and the truth reiterated and confirmed is more than welcome-it reaches your innermost soul.

Fletcher's Castoria is all its advertising has claimed for it. Scrutinized y the microscope of public opinion and used for over thirty years it stands without a peer in the hearts of thoughtful, cautious, discerning Mothers. And once used, mother love—there is no substitute for mother love-will scorn to try a "substitute" or a "just-as-good".

Masquerading under many names drugs that are injurious to the tender babe have found their way into some households, but the light of experience soon casts them out. Are they cast out before it is too late? MOTHERS SHOULD READ THE BOOKLET THAT IS AROUND EVERY BOTTLE OF FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

George Sorenson There is more Catarth in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly falling to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarth is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarth Medicale, manufactured by F. J. Chessey & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarth Medicine fails to cure. Seed for circulars and testimonials, F. J. CHENERY & CO., Tolede, Ohio,
